Freedom in the World 2004 Freedom in the World 2004: The Freedom in the World survey whose findings have been published annually since 1973 is the standard-setting comparative assessment of global political rights and civil liberties. The survey ratings and narrative reports on 195 countries and territories are used by policymakers, the media, international organizations, civil activists, and human rights defenders to monitor trends in democracy and track improvements and setbacks in freedom worldwide. The Freedom in the World political rights and civil liberties ratings are determined through a multi-layered process of research and evaluation by teams of regional analysts and eminent scholars. The analysts use a broad range of sources of information, including foreign and domestic news reports, academic studies, governmental organizations, think tanks, individual professional contacts, and visits to the region, in conducting their research. The methodology of the survey is derived in large measure from the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, and these standards are applied to all countries and territories, irrespective of geopolitical location, ethnic or religious composition, or level of economic development.
